Steve Uribe, LMFT has been in private practice for 36 years with offices in West Hollywood and Studio City. His psychotherapy practice includes in-depth work with individuals and couples in addition to gay men's therapy groups to which other therapists have often referred their clients who were doing individual work but who could also benefit from being in an intimate, non-sexual group experience with other men who are also seeking to continue their personal evolution and growth. He has significant experience including working with clients dealing with anxiety, depression, addictions, aging, loss/grief, coming out, HIV/AIDS, in addition to gay men's issues and relationships in a safe, respectful and self-esteem promoting environment. He welcomes your phone call to speak with you and attempt to answer any and all of your questions. Please feel free to call (323) 852-1262 for additional information.
