My approach to therapy is collaborative and experiential. We will work towards your goal by using internal wisdom and life experience to build on the existing resources in order to help you find a more satisfying life and relationships. I specialize in mood disorders (anxiety, depression, bipolar), relationships, family difficulties, LGBTQQI issues and PTSD/trauma. I have over seventeen years' experience with counseling men on how to be better in their relationships and have extensive training working with couples. I value both evidenced-based techniques and the therapeutic connection.
